Copyright and DMCA Policy

Just In Reality, LLC, operating Grand Theft Clipping. Version 1.3, effective November 17, 2026.

1. Our policy

Just In Reality, LLC respects the rights of creators, streamers and publishers. We respond to notices of claimed copyright infringement that meet the requirements of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act (17 U.S.C. section 512), and we close the accounts of users who repeatedly infringe.

2. Designated agent

Send notices to our copyright agent by email at support@grandtheftclipping.com, with "Copyright notice" in the subject line.

3. Sending a notice

A notice must include all of the following:

- a description of the copyrighted work you say has been infringed;
- a description of the material you want removed and where it is, with enough detail for us to find it (for example the channel, the stream and the time in it, or a link);
- your name, address, telephone number and email address;
- a statement that you have a good-faith belief that the use is not authorised by the copyright owner, its agent or the law;
- a statement that the information in the notice is accurate and, under penalty of perjury, that you are the copyright owner or are authorised to act for the owner; and
- your physical or electronic signature.

When we receive a valid notice we remove or disable access to the material on the Service and tell the user who provided it.

4. Counter-notice

If your content was removed and you believe that was a mistake or a misidentification, you can send a counter-notice to the same address. It must include:

- a description of the material that was removed and where it was before removal;
- a statement, under penalty of perjury, that you have a good-faith belief it was removed by mistake or misidentification;
- your name, address and telephone number;
- a statement that you consent to the jurisdiction of the federal district court for the district where you live (or, if you live outside the United States, any judicial district in which we may be found), and that you will accept service of process from the person who sent the original notice; and
- your physical or electronic signature.

We will send the counter-notice to the person who complained. If they do not tell us within 10 business days that they have filed a court action, we may restore the material.

5. Repeat infringers

We close the accounts of users who are the subject of repeated valid notices. We may also limit or close an account after a single serious case.

6. Streamers and publishers

You do not need to file a formal notice to have your own broadcasts left alone. Email support@grandtheftclipping.com from an address connected with your channel and we will remove your listing and block new jobs from your channel links.

Clips that we reposted on our own channels are in our control. Tell us which video it is and we will take it down.

Clips that a user has already downloaded and posted elsewhere are outside our control. Each platform has its own removal tools, and we will pass your request to the user who made the clip.

7. False claims

Under 17 U.S.C. section 512(f), anyone who knowingly makes a false claim in a notice or counter-notice can be liable for damages, including costs and legal fees.

8. Game footage

Game publishers set their own rules for sharing gameplay. Story spoilers, isolated cutscenes and leaked footage are commonly removed by publishers. The Service flags likely spoilers, but checking and following a publisher's rules before posting is the user's responsibility.
